WE'RE BUILDING A NEW KITCHEN!

On July 25, an audience of 100 guests including San Francisco Mayor London Breed and other elected city officials, donors, project team partners, and news media, joined us to officially break ground on our new state-of-the-art kitchen and food production facility.

With the population of seniors living in San Francisco expected to grow by 30% in the coming years, the new, bigger kitchen is needed in order to keep up with the demand for home-delivered meals and the growing population of food-insecure seniors living in the City.

Meals on Wheels SF CEO and Executive Director, Ashley McCumber, warmed up the crowd by asking them to joyously shout three times "celebrate, celebrate, CELEBRATE" while Kool & the Gang's iconic song "Celebrate" played over the sound system. It was after all, a day of celebration — a day marking a pivotal chapter in our history signifying our important role in the community as providers of home-delivered meals for aging adults who are struggling with food insecurity and loneliness in SF.

"Today, we are celebrating five decades of service here in San Francisco," exclaimed Ashley McCumber. "We're celebrating a mission that started with a handful of people who knew and recognized they had neighbors who needed some help; elderly folks who needed some food and were lonely. They started volunteering to cook food and that morphed into our organization that today, is one of the largest meal programs in the country."

Mayor Breed spoke passionately to the audience and shared how Meals on Wheels supported her grandmother not just with meals, but with kindness, and how the drivers always asked her how she was doing when they delivered her a meal.

Mayor Breed beamed. "Meals on Wheels has been pushing the envelope, doing great work for so many years. I'm so excited to be here and I cannot wait to cut the ribbon when we open."

Ashley closed the ceremony with a reminder to the audience. "We're celebrating much more than just the construction of a new building, we're celebrating and embracing our responsibility to amplify the voice of older adults in the City and to make San Francisco all it can be for them."

The new kitchen and food production facility is expected to be opened in Q4 of 2020. Approximately 80% of the funds have been raised for the project to date.

The new MOWSF kitchen will double the efficiency and output of meals from 8,000 meals daily to 20,000.

MEALS ON WHEELS VISITS KEEP CAROLYN HEALTHY

During the recent MOWSF kitchen groundbreaking ceremony, Carolyn, a Meals on Wheels recipient, smiled while she admired Mayor London Breed's beautiful, Mediterranean blue suit.

"Did you see the old soap opera, Dynasty?" she asks. "Remember when Joan Collins would walk into court wearing these incredible suits? We would talk about her outfit for days while at work. It's the only reason I even watched the show — to see what she was going to wear!"

After the kitchen groundbreaking event, she told Kristi, her Meals on Wheels social worker, that she had never seen any event like this before and was so happy to be a part of history, particularly with an organization that she has grown to know for a decade now.

In 2009, Carolyn was hospitalized with an array of serious medical conditions. With no family to turn to for in-home care such as preparing meals, a nurse recommended she apply for Meals on Wheel's home-delivered meals program in order to stabilize her diet and improve her health.

Carolyn, like so many seniors we serve, lives alone and cannot always get out to enjoy activities such as shopping, going to a friend's home, or taking a stroll around the block. After her parents passed away, and she fell out of touch with her only son, Carolyn became acutely aware of how alone she really was.

According to the most recent data by Meals on Wheels America, of the estimated 58 million older adults age 60 or older living in the U.S., 1 in 4 live alone.

These days Carolyn enjoys relaxing in her easy-chair watching the Price is Right game show and in the evenings, viewing VHS tapes of some of her favorite movies which include the Friday the 13th and Jaws series which she says are her favorites.

She does not have many visitors but she does enjoy when Meals on Wheels checks in on her. The regular visits have helped her establish a morning routine, and that, she says, keeps her active and alert.
